SEPTEMBER 2019

Dear Friends in Christ,

I am always appreciative of the ministry we share at Zion. I believe our congregation is strong in a number of ways

In youth ministry, for example, we have a strong Sunday School with faithful teachers and students. Also, take a look in this newsletter at the ambitious calendar of events planned for our Youth Group. Summer Day Camp has been much appreciated by community children for over ten years. Our Preschool continues to serve a dozen children every year.

In terms of leadership and active membership, many people find a place for their talents and energy. People are willing to pitch in to help with everything from council and committees, to funeral meals and fundraisers.

Zion's financial support of local and world ministries has been steady and generous, and the Disaster Relief Team provides real help to those whose homes need rebuilding.

There are so many more ministries that are faithfully done, and many people who quietly take care of tasks behind the scenes. God has blessed Zion!

As we celebrate all of these ministries it is always important to keep asking, "Who is God encouraging us to serve in mission?" We serve because we have been touched by God's love and grace and help, and we want others to be touched by God's love, too. I like the way Pastor Kennon Callahan, church consultant and author, describes a church with a focus on mission. He writes:

"Many congregations are part of the mission growth movement. For these congregations, the focus is: We are helping the persons God is inviting us to serve in mission. We are a serving congregation. We serve for the sake of serving. We do not serve to grow. The goal is serving, not growing. When we serve, sometimes we grow. Then, we give thanks to God twice, once for serving and, then, again, for the new persons who have joined with us in the serving."

I believe that this describes Zion, a church that serves willingly. May our question continue to be: "Who is God encouraging us to serve in mission?" God has much more ministry in store for us at Zion.

Yours In Christ,
Pastor Roux

Also, to enhance communication conference wide, Jonathan Moser will create a conference Facebook page. Pastor Kate Drefke and Ann Gardner will assist in administering the page.

Conference-wide activities (2 or 3 per year) were also discussed. Suggestions included Reformation services, the continuation of the Lay School of Theology, Lenten services, hymn sings, hayrides, an activity at Camp Mount Luther, and a Pentecostal bonfire.

Terry Brown, synod council's LAMPa representative, said he would be happy to visit any congregation to further explain that group's mission and ministry.

Pastor Justin suggested the conference group might be the appropriate place to share and discuss "parish couples counseling" issues for churches that share leadership.

Next meeting: Faith Lutheran Church, 2349 Old Turnpike Road, Lewisburg on November 17th at 6:00 PM.

Meeting adjourned at 7:20 PM with a benediction by Mindy Bartholomew.

Nave Renewal Update

We have received bids from two local contractors for our Nave Renewal project. Gray Builders and Zartman have both provided bids. We are currently reviewing them to compare their prices. Rolf Rohn, our Liturgical Designer has also been asked to review the bids and to revise our plans so we have an affordable project that will meet our needs. As always, if you have any questions, please ask Pastor Roux or Drew Potts, Chairman of the Nave Renewal Committee.

BUFFALO VALLEY CONFERENCE NEWS

The first all-conference meeting for the Buffalo Valley Conference of the Upper Susquehanna Synod was held August 25. Those in attendance from Zion were Steve and Kate Fisher, Lori Dyer, and Terry and Ann Gardner. Communication and sharing activities within the conference were the major topics of discussion. The minutes of that meeting appear below. These meetings will be held quarterly, the next being Sunday, November 17th at 6:00 PM. Anyone from the congregation is invited to attend.

Zion's Benevolence Giving

Our congregation has been very generous throughout the years in Benevolence Giving. Approximately ten percent of our regular giving is distributed to the ministries of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America as well as local ministries. In particular we support the ELCA through our giving to the Upper Susquehanna Synod as well as the ELCA World Hunger Appeal, ELCA Domestic Disaster Relief, and United Lutheran Seminary. Our local benevolences are distributed to Warrior Run Neighbors Helping Neighbors, Haven Ministry, and Camp Mt. Luther.

All of this giving is paid for through your contributions to the Current Fund. When you make designated contributions to these funds, they are in addition to the commitments that we have already made in our budget. Through your generosity, Zion gives a very generous amount to these benevolences every year.

This initial meeting was called to order at 6:05 PM by Pastor John Yost with 'welcome' remarks by Pastor Justin Lingenfelter.

Each attending member introduced his/her self. There were 32 in attendance representing 13 congregations.

Not much has been done conference-wide at this point aside from the pastors meeting once a month. All congregations have different ways of expressing their ministries within each of their churches. Some of the various ministries happening within the conference are:

- Quilt making (Messiah)
- Disaster Relief (Zion, Turbotville)
- Youth Groups (various)
- Free community meals (various)
- Backpack program (various)
- Food bank programs (Christ United, Mazepa)
- Neighbors helping neighbors (various)
- Diaper Pantry (United in Christ)
- Project Linus (Faith)
- Social activities at Buffalo Valley Lutheran Village
- Senior programs (various)

It was discussed and decided that communication is key to any success in sharing existing programs or creating new activities. Mindy Bartholomew volunteered to be the "clearing house" for event happenings. Each congregation represented at the meeting now has a volunteer who will ordered to read their books from school, then the child might start to resent reading and desire to watch TV.

The Church Council extends our sincere appreciation to Mr. Bower.

Set learning goals.

Talking with children about what they would like to accomplish during the school year will help them start to learn the invaluable skill of goal setting. Working with children to set achievable goals can encourage children to achieve their reading goals. For example, Sally is a second grader and is having trouble stringing words together because she has to sound out every word. Sally's mom talked to Sally about some ways they could work on helping Sally become a faster reader. One idea they had was to read some of the same books over and over again. Another idea they had was to read some of Sally's kindergarten books and work up to stringing together bigger words.

Be enthusiastic!

Positive attitudes are very important to a child's reading development and generate a desire to read. Showing genuine excitement for children's reading skills will encourage them to become great readers. Struggling readers may start to develop a negative attitude towards reading, but showing them that reading can be fun will get them excited about reading time. Great times to praise a child when he or she is reading include, when he or she sounds out a difficult word, self-corrects and re-reads a sentence, or asks questions as he or she is reading.

Great reads, both fiction and non-fiction, are available for your reading pleasure on the bookshelves in the narthex. Check out time is two weeks.

Alvira and the Ordnance: An American Dream Denied

At the outset of WWII, a small local village and its surrounding farmlands were forcibly taken over by the War Department in order to build a top-secret TNT production plant, the Pennsylvania Ordnance Works. Given six weeks to vacate the lands upon which many families had lived for centuries, the good people of the White Deer Valley in southern Lycoming County were distraught. Their land and property taken by eminent domain for an average 30 cents on the dollar, many had a tough time with the dislocation.

What became of the people, the village of Alvira and the massive TNT plant are the subject of a 30-minute film presentation by Steve and Martha Huddy of Williamsport. Historical and contemporary photographs, and interviews with survivors of the ordeal bring to life this previously unknown piece of local history and its connection with the greater picture of WWII. The Huddys, former educators, have spent the last decade documenting every available detail of this history and have produced two lasting tributes, the acclaimed documentary film Surrender! The Sudden Death of Alvira, Pennsylvania, and the 489-page history of all that has transpired there from founding to demise, entitled The Land: A Biography of 13 Square Miles of the White Deer Valley, both of which will be offered for sale at this presentation. Following Alvira and the Ordnance, Steve and Martha will be delighted to entertain audience questions about the events they have chronicled.

Lunch will be at the Allenwood Café.

We meet the second Wednesday of the month.

Mark your calendars!

Be a great reading partner.

It's no fun to read when you're forced to or feel embarrassed and ashamed to read. Building trust and supporting a child reader is crucial as a reading partner. Here are some tips for becoming a great reading partner:

Be patient and encouraging.

Read aloud and track the words with your finger as you are reading.

Read the same stories over and over. Try reading the same stories in different ways, with different voices to make it fun and interesting.

Ask questions about the story while you're reading to gauge comprehension.

Pick books that are at the right level for your young reader—5+ mistakes on one page is too hard. No mistakes or only one mistake per page is too easy.

Gently correct mistakes and re-read the entire sentence.

Give positive feedback and tell the reader he or she is doing a great job.

NEVER: Bribe, nag, criticize, judge, or add pressure by making a big deal about reading.

Surround your child with books.

Research shows that the number of books in the home is a strong indicator for reading achievement and educational attainment. When children have access to books in their home, they become familiar with books and the act of reading, effectively giving them a head start in learning. A child who looks at books and reads with his or her parents/guardians everyday has a major advantage compared to children who never read at home and who have never been introduced to the concept of reading. Simply interacting with books on a regular basis makes a huge difference in a child's development.

Bring books everywhere.

Incorporating books into everyday activities will continue to help children become more familiar with books and will encourage everyday reading. Place books in the home, in the car, and take books everywhere. Children with an array of reading materials around them and in their homes tend to have higher academic achievement.

Set a good example... get caught in the act.

Children are a product of their upbringing and mimic the behavior they see at home. If a child observes his or her parent/guardian reading every night, then that child will emulate the same behavior. On the contrary, if a child observes their parent/guardian watching TV every night while they are

Back-to-School Reading Tips

It's that time of year again. Summer break has come to an end and kids are back in school. Reading at home is invaluable to a child's academic development. Research has shown that one-on-one reading time and access to books are important predictors of future literacy skills and, inevitably, future educational outcomes. Children who aren't given the opportunity to read as often fall behind in school, with difficulties following them through middle school, high school, and beyond. Here are some easy ways that parents or guardians can help children become strong, successful readers:

Set a routine.

Setting routines for mornings and evenings helps children cope with stresses that may arise from starting a new school year. Routines have many benefits, namely, children feel comfortable and stable in their environment, resulting in more cooperative behavior inside and outside of school. Children who are overtired, who eat too many fatty or sugary foods, or who are coping with inconsistent schedules are prone to behavioral problems and may find it increasingly difficult to concentrate in school.

Read at home.

Reading regularly at home provides children with the practice they need to become great readers. Remember, “The more kids read, the better they read.” Reading at home reinforces a positive attitude around reading. The best way to incorporate reading in the household is to devote 20 to 40 minutes, at the same time every day, to family reading time. Another fun idea is to have children read to their pets, siblings, or stuffed animals to help them practice.

Make a special reading spot.

Designating a special reading spot for children to read with their parents/guardians is not only fun, but it is also a great way to create a distraction-free zone where children can concentrate. The reading spot should be free of any extraneous noise, toys, etc. Putting some pillows or a comfy chair in the corner of a room and surrounding the area with books is a great way to go.
